

Dr. Pablo Lapuerta

Dr. Lapuerta is a biotech executive and consultant with experience in successfully developing new medicines and gaining regulatory approvals. He is the founder and CEO of 4M Therapeutics. He was previously Chief Medical Officer at Lexicon Pharmaceuticals for 10 years, and before that he was a Vice President of clinical development at Bristol-Myers Squibb. He has published over 100 scientific articles. Dr. Lapuerta graduated from Harvard Medical School, completed a residency in internal medicine at UNC Chapel Hill, and performed a post-doctoral fellowship in neuroscience at UCLA.